As smoke billows out the front door of Leon's Video Rental store on Main Street, firemen edge their way into the darkened building. The firefighters were able to quickly contain the blaze, but not before most the store's stock of video tapes was damaged by the intense heat.

Fire guts video store

A Main Street fire has resulted in the closure of a downtown business and forced a resident of an adjoining property to flee his home. The first, at Leon's Video, occurred Wednesday evening.

While the cause of the fire is undetermined, fire officials have traced the origin of the blaze to the business counter area in the retail portion of the building. The structure, owned by Morris McKelvey is split between Leon's Video rental store, owned by Leon and Joyce Wright, and the residence of McKelvey.

Fire and smoke damage was heaviest in the business portion of the building. The alarm was turned in by Minden IDA pharmacist Paul Heffer. He noticed smoke coming from the

CAS directors will resign unless funding is given

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The local Children's Aid Society has threatened to cease operations unless the province comes up with more money.

At a press conference last Thursday, Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society president Roy Wood said the board of directors has agreed to resign if the agency's financial crisis is not addressed.

In a letter to Zanana Arkande, Minister of Community and Social Services, Wood says the society is in a position of bankruptcy. Unless the province comes up with $250,000 by the end of February, the agency's directors will turn over operation of services to the ministry.

"We will continue operations until we run out of money," said Wood. "We're looking for a response beyond a response from bureaucrats."

Officials from the ministry's regional office in Peterborough told Wood that they will try and get the necessary funds to the society to prevent its closing, but Wood says the directors want the ministry to address the cause of the problem.

The Children's Aid Society's financial woes began in 1987 when the agency spent more than the ministry had budgeted. Although the ministry covered the shortfall, the amount budgeted for 1988 was less than the agency had spent in 1987 and what the directors expected to spend in 1988.

Since then, demand for the society's services have pushed expenditures beyond ministry funding and an accumulated deficit of more than $1 million is expected for 1990.

The situation reached the critical point last November when the society came close to running out of money. Only by extending their line of credit and the bank, and a ministry infusion of $250,000, allowed the agency to meet its payroll and continue operations.

At a meeting in December the board of directors considered their options. The three choices they faced were; to continue operating in the current hand-to-mouth manner letting the deficit grow, slash expenditures by cutting back on staff and

Final chapter of community service plan approved

Committee ready for second phase

by Susan Grober

The final chapter of the county's directional plan for long-term health, housing and social service needs has been approved.

The steering committee formed to study these needs finished polishing the report's nine chapters at last Tuesday's meeting, "right down to the final wording," resource person Dawn Berry Merriam told The Times.

The chapters outline recommended actions, the people responsible to carry out the actions, and all the supporting data, said committee chairman Maureen Dikun.

Since members of the public had the opportunity to provide input through open houses, the next stage is to bring the finalized report back to the public.

"We gleaned from the public for their input," said Dikun. "Now we'll go to them to show how their plan has come to fruition, to give them a sense of ownership."

"Certainly that's going to put it to bed, because we started out with that community input," said Berry Merriam. "We talked to people from all walks of life. We like to think it's their report."

Berry Merriam feels those who provided input will see their interests reflected in the report. "I'm anticipating a good response."

The complete report will be brought back to the committee on March 12, and then sent to the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Council for its approval.

"And that really starts the whole process," said Berry Merriam. From there, the report will be sent to the ministries of health, housing and social services.

Canadians need knowledge to progress

This week's contribution to the Canadian Forum is written by Tom Dawson. A teacher for the past 20 years, Mr. Dawson is a native of London, England. He came to Canada when he was one year old with his family and lived in Quebec and Nova Scotia before settling in Haliburton County in 1975.

by Tom Dawson

The fathers of Confederation started with a vision for Canada back in 1867, "a land from Sea to Sea", one that brought a mixture of languages, ethnic groups and geography into a new entity called Canada.

This vision or common purpose has produced our present situation and, much like in a person's life, it is time to re-evaluate how far we have come and where we plan to go from here. Our lives function on many levels, at home with our families, as part of a community, as workers, as consumers and as citizens of a country. All of these activities are intrinsically connected to the form this country assumes, much like the different body organs are connected to and affected by the organism they make up.

The most reliable way to anticipate the future is by understanding the present. All of us are drowning in information but we are starved for knowledge. There is widespread concern about personal privacy as computers compile records of our transactions, buying patterns, magazine choices and the like. We begin to see that money in the hands of the few is a power source being replaced by information in the hands of the many. Is the function of government to control the people or is it the function of people to control the government?

Over-control is just as dangerous as under-control. The crises in the Soviet Union and other countries demonstrate how the state that attempts to over-control its people and economy ultimately destroys the very order it keeps. The state with the lightest touch may accomplish the most and enhance its own power in the process.

There are cities, companies, unions and political parties, in this country that are like dinosaurs waiting for the weather to change. The weather is not going to change. The very ground is shifting beneath us. What is called for is nothing less than all of us reconceptualizing our roles.

Visionaries are not always received with the greatest respect because they always talk enthusiastically about some invisible idea that everyone else finds either ridiculous or impossible. Fortunately many of these futurists sense changing times and circumstances, allowing them to make that "Quantum Leap" into what might be.

Who can ever forget President John Kennedy's vision of "Putting a man on the moon by the end of the decade".

The American people had a common purpose to strive for but more importantly it inspired and galvanized the best in a nation.

This past year has shown a world in upheaval, long established borders and governments have suddenly begun to change into new forms never before imagined. Our world politicians commonly talk about the impending "New World Order". Scientists now talk about "Chaos Theory" in physics and system analysis. It basically suggests that physical structures ultimately reach an unbalanced state where the inefficiency of the system causes its own dissolution.

A period of "chaos" heralds the breakdown of the structures into newer more stable forms which then become hybrids of the original. Pablo Picasso mirrored this insight in his famous observation that "One must first destroy in order to create".

If one recognizes the need to adapt to new world inputs, it only follows that the form of our country will not remain as it was in 1867.

I believe Canada and the world in general are entering a bifurcation point where the important decisions of today will define the path of tomorrow.

Alvin Toffler the author of "Future Shock" and "Third Wave" has just published his newest assessment in "Powershifts"; Knowledge, wealth and violence at the edge of the 21st Century". His views are highly respected world wide to such an extent that many foreign governments decide major economic strategies based on his insights. He suggests that we are seeing companies, countries and even world economy splitting into opposing camps or parties.

Powershifts are transforming finance, politics and the media, together creating a radically different society. The very nature of power is changing, significant but largely unnoticed shifts of power are taking place in the intimate, everyday world we inhabit—the world of supermarkets, hospital, banks, business offices, television and telephones.

President John Kennedy was a leader in the stream of history of explorers, builders and creators, his legacy is not political. It is orientational.

Maybe our future lies in the reality of his inspirational words; "I believe the times demand invention, innovation, imagination, decision, I am asking each of you to be new pioneers of that New Frontier. My call is to the young in heart, regardless of age - to the stout in spirit, regardless of party - to all who respond to the scriptural call:

"Be strong and of good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed."

We are all idealists. We are all visionaries. Let it not be said of this Atlantic generation that we left ideals and visions to the past, nor purpose and determination to our adversaries. We have come too far, we have sacrificed too much, to disdain the future now. And we shall remember what Goethe told us, that the "highest wisdom the best that mankind ever knew was the realization that he only earns his freedom and existence who daily conquers them anew".

I would like to finish this tour of the future with one last comment from Toffler as he sums up the conclusions of his work.

We are witnessing one of the most important changes in the history of power.

For it is now indisputable that knowledge, the source of the highest quality power of all, is gaining importance with every fleeting nanosecond. This is the dangerous secret of the Powershift era in Canada "know thyself".

No fine print

Readers who find most books leave them squinting will be happy to hear members of the Minden Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636 donated 87 large-print books to the Minden Library last week. Present were, from left: President Sally Bonner, 2nd Vice-President Lois Adamson, County Librarian Joel Levis, and 1st Vice-President Dave McAdam. Levis says the books, a combination of romances, mysteries and westerns, are enough to fill more than two shelves in the library.

Tapes and stock lost in Main Street fire building as he locked his nearby business and prepared to leave for home.

The video rental business had closed at 5 p.m.

Fire chief Don Booth said the extensive fire damage occurred to the stock of video tapes, floor and ceiling in the area of the counter. He said it appeared the fire had smouldered for some time, working its way into the walls and ceiling.

The residential portion of the building suffered some smoke and water damage. However, since the electrical system on the business portion sustained serious damage, power to the entire structure has been disconnected forcing McKelvey to leave his home.

While final appraisals have yet to be completed, initial estimates indicate a $20,000 to $30,000 loss in stock and equipment and $5,000 in damage to the building.

Store operator, Joyce

Wright, said all of the tapes had been melted by the heat of the fire. She said it would be difficult to say when, or even if, the business would re-open. An assessment of the repairs will have to be carried out before any decision could be made on the future of the rental business.

Obviously shaken by the experience she noted, "It's ten years of our life gone. It will be a while before we know what is happening."

Fire Chief Booth had praise for his men and the way they contained the fire. He said their systematic approach to fighting the blaze helped to hold damages to a minimum. The relatively mild temperatures, speed with which the alarm was turned in, time of day (which meant most members of the department were readily available), and the availability of water, all played in the firefighters' favour.

The investigation into the fire continues.

Society scrambles for funding solutions hours of operation or forcing a confrontation with the ministry to resolve the dilemma. They chose the latter.

The letter to Arkande says unless the problem of inadequate funding is addressed, the board has decided its only option is to turn operation of the service over to ministry control.

Wood says he isn't aware of a Children's Aid Society ever having resigned before and admits he doesn't know if the move is legal. He said he's confident the ministry will provide the needed funding and the board's resignation won't be necessary.

Ultimately, Wood said he wants the ministry to review the society's operation and expenditures and either suggest ways to cut spending or approve a realistic budget.

Currently 90 per cent of the money spent by the agency goes directly to the care of children through staff costs and residential placement. Wood says the agency is running as efficiently as possible given the resources available.

Disbanding the society might seem like a drastic move, but Wood says its come to the point where the directors have nothing to lose. If the ministry agrees to review funding practices, the agency could be given the resources it needs. If money runs out and the society folds, the ministry will assume responsibility for the services.

In either case, Wood says the needs of the children in the society's care will be met.

"We have a moral responsibility to look after the kids the best we can," he said.

The Kawartha-Haliburton Children's

Aid Society provides services in Haliburton County, Victoria County, Peterborough County and the City of Peterborough. The municipal governments are responsible for providing 20 per cent of the funding.

The politicians who represent the counties on the board of directors are supporting the stand taken by the society.

Cardiff Reeve Maurice Bradley is Haliburton County's representative on the Children's Aid Society and he said the county is completely behind the board on the funding issue.

"We're not prepared to carry on this way," Bradley told The Times. The ministry has refused to cover the interest costs of the agency's $775,000 debt, costs that are almost $100,000 a year.

"That leaves the board with a debt we're responsible for. It's not a proper way to continue," said Bradley. "There comes a time when you have to say 'sorry, we're not going to do it'."

If the ministry doesn't help pay off the debt, the counties may have to cover the shortfall. "It's a concern that we might have to pick up that kind of debt," said Bradley. "The municipal representatives played an important role in bringing this to a climax."

Bradley has often expressed concern about Haliburton County's share of the Children's Aid budget and has proposed that the county take over local provision of the services.

The society's current monetary crisis makes that option more attractive and he hopes county council will pursue that option.

"There is some indication that it would be to the county's advantage to pursue that as soon as possible," he said. "I think we will see something to that end within the year."

There are currently 13 children in Haliburton County receiving care by the Children's Aid Society. Bradley says he's waiting for the society to provide detailed information about the costs involved in providing care to those children so the county can determine if it's viable to go it alone.

Study nears end of first phase

"Phase A is coming to a close," she said.

In the next three weeks, the committee must start making decisions on Phase B of the directional plan, which is to form an implementation committee.

"We'll be glad when it's done and we're proud of it and somebody else takes the ball and runs with it," said Dikun.

Also considered at Tuesday's meeting was an ad hoc committee's recommendations on existing community services which would benefit from short-term funding available from the provincial government.

In August, it was announced $350,000 would be provided annually for the expansion and improvement of social service and health programs. "We had to reach some decision before March 31," said Dikun. "It seemed a shame not to use that money."

Although the overall directional plan was not completed, six different recommendations taken from strategies of the plan, and were accepted by the steering committee.

These recommendations will now go through the Community Health and Support Service branch for approval.

The steering committee has worked more than a year on the overall study, but Dikun feels the time was well-spent. "We're trying not to feel pressure because of time — we just want to do it really well..."

"A lot of the public has been worrying about why it's taking so long," she said. "We wanted to get their input, and to have an ownership of the whole report. It's paid off in the long run to take the time."

Lawsuit wrong

A recent decision by the Victoria County Board of Education to collect $15,000 from 14 members of the Save Our Schools committee is wrong.

No one should be held personally liable when legally fighting for what they believe to be a just cause.

For the past four years the members of SOS have been trying to stop the school board from closing five elementary schools in Kinmount, Norland, Burnt Rive, Coboconk and Kirkfield in favour of two large amalgamated schools.

Their objection was not motivated by personal gain. The residents who objected to the closures did so in the belief that the vitality of their communities and the education of their children would suffer as a result of the board's decision.

For four years they used every avenue available to try and maintain the five small schools including electing school board trustees sympathetic to their cause and bringing the issue before the Ontario Municipal Board and the provincial ombudsman.

The final defeat for the SOS committee came at the hands of the Supreme Court of Ontario which ruled in favour of the school board's right to close the schools.

But does this victory give the school board the right to punish those who opposed it?

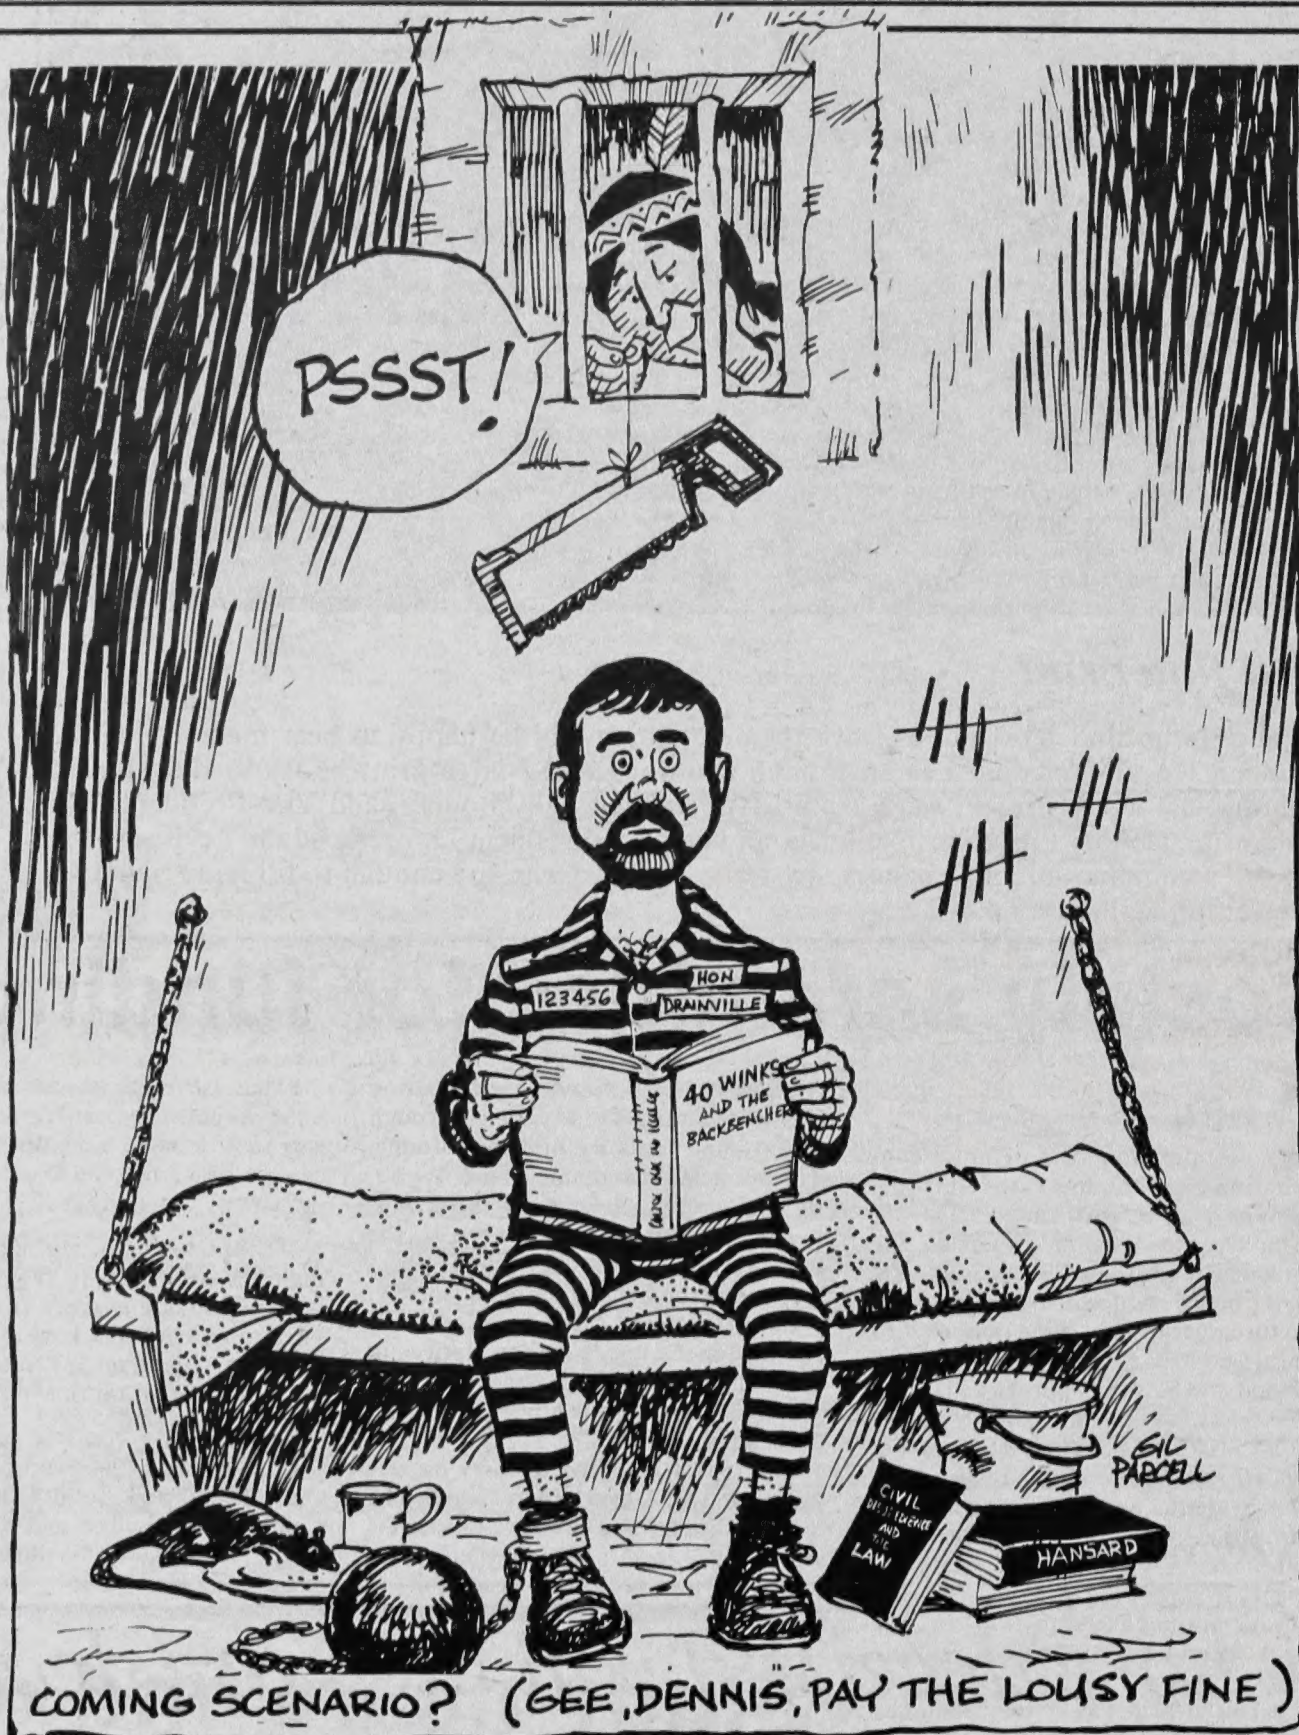

In terms of the board's overall budget, more than $20 million in 1990, the $15,000 is insignificant, but for the 14 individuals named in the suit the amount is onerous.

It appears as if the board is making an example of the members of SOS to discourage further objections from residents in the county.

This message flies in the face of the very democratic principles upon which our system is founded.

All parties would be better served if the trustees could put the fight behind them and get on with the business of running the county's schools.

Forgiving the $15,000 is a small price to pay for credibility.

Ladies and gentlemen it is my very great privilege to have the honour of introducing you to His Royal Highness Prince Bandra Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

That's His Highness over there, on the steps of the Knightsbridge Court, sandwiched somewhat indelicately between two unsmiling members of the British Constabulary.

thing.

A crook.

But an uncommonly audacious one. Actually he isn't Prince Faisal at all. He's really Kirpal Singh Johl, a 58-year-old Kenyan rent clerk who emigrated to Britain 19 years ago. Mister Johl scuffled around in marginal jobs for a few years until he decided he'd had enough of life as an underdog. In 1986, he quit his job collecting rents and disappeared. Some weeks later, he surfaced as Prince Faisal, tycoon, dandy and man about town.

His own mother wouldn't have recognized him. Prince Faisal wore Saville Row suits, gold rings and enough diamonds to bring out the green light in Liz Taylor's eyes.

He bought himself a million dollar country

County-wide official plan means more red tape

Editor:

County Official Plan:

(Translated from Rafflegab to English by Jim Battarbee)

Translators preface: It is not my intention to portray any of our elected officials as incompetent. From what I can see, most of these people are honest, hard working and good intending. When I see provincial or federal bunglecrats proposing deals with our local representatives, I envision a Las Vegas card shark dealing out to Jethro Bodean & Co.

A County Plan could only come about from prompting by Provincial Planners. At times this prompting may be open and official complete with rewards (or threats to take away grants, loans, etc.) or behind the doors offering a local the chance to further his political career provincially.

From the Second World War on, there has been one unofficial rule followed by every provincial and federal politician: "At every opportunity, justify anything that give you more control." it is for this reason I object to a County Official Plan.

Translation: (The Development of a County Official Plan will not diminish the control Municipal Councils have over local planning matters.)

(The County Plan won't be ready until 1994 or 1995.)

Read: In 3 or 4 year these fools will forget that they had a choice, besides we will get a Provincial Grant somehow to pave over any one who complains.

(Municipal Council's overwhelmingly support of the idea of a two-tier Official Plan.)

Read: If anyone wants to do something that we don't like, he will have to fight us twice. No one will get anything done that we don't want because we can double red tape him forever.

(The county is not interested in using the Official Plan to "usurp" the authority of the Townships.)

Read: Look boys, we just want the power, we won't use it!! Honest!

(Stagg and one secretary are the only staff needed to develop the plan. Any additional work would be done by outside consultants.)

Read: Tell the fools it will only cost them $50 grand for our pay. When we get the power, I'll hire "outside consultants" like you good old boys. The province will pick up 50% and our board room expenses can pay for anything we want. We've got a licence to print money if we don't let the cat out of the bag.

(Municipalities with Official Plans will be re-imbursed and a portion is used on a county-wide basis.)

Read: Those who play ball with us we can pay back with cash for a few words out of their Plan. Those who don't, we can choke out by giving them "0".

(Municipalities will have the freedom to be more lax or strict than the county in certain areas as long as it's reasonable, said Stagg.)

In Conclusion: We have painfully seen the results of more government control too many times. This would be a great starting point to reverse these community advancements. Those of us who understand why our forefathers left their homeland to come here should see that when we let politicians get more control, we are losing what made Canada worth coming to.

Jim Battarbee,
Bob Lake.

Inconsiderate ice fishermen spoil the lake

Editor:

I am taking the time to write this letter because I am fed up with having to clean up after "local" ice fishermen.

Last year I picked up empty pop cans, styrofoam cups, empty plastic bait bags, etc. This year it is the same story.

These people trespass through private property to get to the lake. They could at least have the decency to take their garbage home with them.

Today, Sunday, February 3, three jerks added insult to injury by cutting down a beautiful little birch tree to make a fire.

No doubt there will be a flurry of letters refuting my claim that the "local lads" are to blame. Sorry, it is true. They love to chat and tell us what a great little lake we have.

To the responsible local fishermen I can only say, "This is not addressed to you." To the rest, I repeat, "CLEAN UP YOUR ACT!!"

We want to keep it a great little lake.

In conclusion, I urge anyone witnessing this kind of pollution to take down the licence numbers and have them published. I only regret I didn't take down the number of the truck driver by the ones who cut the tree and left their garbage today.

mansion, complete with swimming pool — on credit of course — who'd refuse a Prince? When the rent was a few months overdue "Prince Faisal" simply applied to the Kreditforeningen Bank of Denmark for a $1.8 million mortgage. He got it, paid his back rent, made one payment to the Danes and spent the rest of the cash on champagne, clothes, chauffeur-driven limos and of course renos on his mansion, which he dubbed Faisal House.

Actually, the prince's whole existence was a spectacular house of cards — by definition, a rickety one. Eventually it came tumbling down, but not before Prince Faisal had himself one jolly merry-go-round.

Most crooks are breathtakingly dumb. For every "Prince Faisal" there are a hundred foolish felons like ... well, like Joseph Hill of Longwood, Florida, who was recently convicted of counterfeiting more than 3,000,000 Polish zlotys.

Sounds impressive until you find out that 3,000,000 zlotys are worth a little over $300. As one of the arresting officers said "The guy could have printed a boxcar full of them and still not had enough to buy a good suit."

Or there's the case of Earl Latham, a pretty con who broke out of the Baltimore House of Correction and holed up at his mother's house. When the cops knocked on the door, Earl answered. The conversation went something like this:

COP: "Are you Earl?"

EARL: "Yo."

COP: "Earl Latham?"

EARL: "Uhhhh, no. My name's Earl Smith."

COP: "Oh yeah? Can you spell Smith for me?"

He couldn't.

We have our own made-in-Canada thugs, of course. Last spring, Danny Simpson knocked over an Ottawa bank totting an old Colt .45. He got $6,000. Unbeknownst to dim Dan, his gun was a rare antique worth almost twenty times that.

"It's one of life's ironies" said Simpson's lawyer "that, at auction, that gun could fetch $100,000."

An academic irony at best. Danny Simpson is currently residing in a one-room coldwater flat with no conveniences, surly neighbours and an extremely lousy view.

Swell security system 'though.

Prince Faisal isn't faring any better. He's doing four and a half years in similar British accommodations as an involuntary guest of Her Majesty.

Which I guess improves on the old adage. Crime not only doesn't pay — it costs.

MAPPING OUT THE FUTURE:

LEN MUNT'S GOAL IS TO EDUCATE THE COUNTY ON KEY ENVIRONMENT ISSUES

by Susan Grober

When Len Munt was in high school he knew one thing for certain — he didn't want to become a teacher, a route taken by many of his peers.

He always enjoyed the outdoors, and was a junior forest ranger in Fort Frances when he was 17. So, after graduating from high school in his hometown of Windsor, Munt spent two years at college in Sault Ste. Marie to become a forest technician, and then three years at Algoma University for a biology degree.

But now, as the county's new co-ordinator for both the Gypsy moth and the Waste Management Master Plan, Munt finds himself stressing the importance of educating the public toward a better environment.

"Education is the way to go," he says of his functions in each of the two roles he has played for the county since starting last November.

Munt had lived in Toronto for six months when he accepted the job here: after three months, he left a company which shall remain nameless because he didn't agree with its environmental practices; and the next three months he worked as administrative assistant at a medical clinic.

However, the bulk of Munt's work experience comes from seven years on a contract basis at the Forest Pest Management Institute for the Canadian Forestry Service in Sault Ste. Marie.

There Munt researched Canadian-wide problems in the forest, and had the opportunity to travel across the country.

For one project, Munt spent eight weeks out in the field to research and collect data on how specific insecticides work at killing insects.

For another, he studied the affects of insecticides on the breeding behaviour of songbirds.

And there was always variety, as Munt either worked in the field, the lab or the office.

"It was a good place to work," he says. "I really like doing research."

Still, the job did get frustrating at times. "Research is such a ball of wax with the federal government always cutting back. They always tended to run out of money before you could finish the project," he says.

It was also difficult working on a contract basis. "I would have a four-month contract, and then they'd find more funding for another two months, and then another two months."

Because Munt's work was seasonal, his income was supplemented by working at a ski resort during the winter.

Finally, Munt decided to leave the job to find something more steady. "I figured I might want to start settling down and thinking of the future."

He discovered the Haliburton job after friends in Sault Ste. Marie told him about a similar position with another county.

And his new position certainly doesn't lack the variety he once enjoyed.

Munt's role in the Gypsy moth program changes constantly. He's been out in the field doing egg mass surveys, and then back in the office to cull through numerous applications for the spray program. His next job is to complete a mapping of spray blocks for the Ministry of Natural Resources.

"But the big thing is going to be in the education," he says. "Trees are dying, but it's not just the Gypsy moth that's killing them."

For example, the Gypsy moth caterpillars can weaken a tree, allowing a deadly fungus to set in. Drought and acid rain are other factors in tree decline.

"A key function is education on a broad forest health aspect," says Munt, who will go through this education process with a presentation on the voracious caterpillar at a Rotary Club meeting on February 18.

One aspect of Munt's role in education is to inform the public on the safety of the pesticide used to combat the Gypsy moth caterpillar.

Bacillus thuringiensis, or Bt, is a natural bacteria which must be eaten by the caterpillar to be effective. Bt produces a protein crystal that paralyzes the gut of the caterpillar, which stops feeding and starves to death.

Some have refused the spray program because they're afraid of insecticides, and Munt has attempted to dispel these fears.

"Bt itself is safe," he says. "I've been sprayed many times by Bt, and I'm healthy as a horse."

Education is also an important factor in waste management, and Munt plans to keep the lines of communication open during the process of devising a master plan for the county.

An engineering and consulting firm has been hired by the county's steering committee to study waste management and draw up a 20- to 40-year plan.

"It will deal with so many aspects, like burning in the landfills, when and where we'll need new landfills, and whether there should be natural or engineered landfill sites," says Munt.

The first stage of the report is expected in March or April.

Ratepayers of each municipality have their say through their representatives on the Public Liaison Committee. This group of volunteers meet once a month, and act as a go-between for the public and the consultants.

"The public has got to stay involved," says Munt. "The committee's main function is to get input from the public. We need the public to tell the consultants, 'We don't want a landfill here, this place is a better spot.'"

All meetings are open to the public, and a special waste management workshop will be held March 2 in Haliburton Village. Information will also be available through a newsletter which is coming out soon.

Munt has found there are many in the community concerned with the Gypsy moth and waste management problems. And it's not been too difficult to drum up support.

Then again, Munt has experience in drumming. When he was in high school, he played drums with a popular new wave band called The Shades.

Munt says the band was just getting on track when he left for college, and even opened for a fairly popular group in those days, The Romantics, at the University of Windsor.

"We had a following at the University of Windsor — people would come just to see us," he says with pride. "It was really something. It was the first time I ever played a pink drumset."

Munt was actually quite serious about music, and had applied to the University of Western Ontario to study percussion at the same time he applied to become a forest technician.

"It was a toss-up between the two. But I knew I wasn't going to become a teacher like a lot of people did at that time, that's for sure," Munt says, appreciating the irony in this statement.

"I figure drums or percussion is something I could always play again. Although I haven't played for some years, you'll still find me tapping away."

As Haliburton County's co-ordinator of both the Gypsy moth and waste management programs, Len Munt has been busy these days. Here he points out mapped blocks for this spring's caterpillar spray program.

Impaired driver jailed 14 days for second offence

The following cases were heard by Provincial Court Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in Minden. Jerry Woron acted as Crown Attorney.

Jail for driving under the influence

A 22-year-old man was sentenced to 14 days in jail after being convicted for his second offence of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Robert Lloyd Alden was charged with impaired driving and driving with over 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood in Dudley Township on January 13.

Police were on routine patrol on Highway 121 near County Road 3 that morning. The officers followed Alden's car when they noticed it swerving over the centre line, and drove 100 to 120 km/hour for five km to catch up.

Alden stopped his car immediately after police turned on their car's flashing lights. He failed a roadside screening test, and was taken to the Minden OPP detachment for a breathalyzer.

Two tests determined Alden had 126 and 123 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

Along with the mandatory jail sentence for the over 80 charge, Alden is prohibited from driving for two years. The Crown withdrew the impaired driving charge.

Gas station attendant assaulted

A Toronto man was fined for hitting an attendant at a West Guilford service station.

Attila H. Brontiu, 33, was trying to pay a $12 bill to the attendant, who was repeatedly interrupted by other customers, court was told.

In the courts

Brontiu left the station, and returned to deal with the attendant again. He then struck the attendant's nose with the heel of his hand.

Brontiu's defence lawyer said the man was frustrated by the constant interruptions. "He owed a $12 bill and couldn't get the attendant's attention."

The pair began shouting. And when the attendant pointed his finger, Brontiu pushed it away and hit his face, said the lawyer.

Brontiu must pay a $400 fine and $35 surcharge, and was instructed by the Crown Attorney to stay away from the service station.

$400 fine for disturbance at restaurant

A 38-year-old man pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose after an incident last June at the Cottage Restaurant in West Guilford.

Gunther H. Jost was drinking at the restaurant, and a patron complained when he began swearing. After he was refused another drink, Jost left the restaurant, said Crown Attorney Woron.

Woron said Jost then returned to the restaurant, told of an old fight, and left again after apologizing to the patrons.

Jost later returned to the restaurant, confronted a waitress, and asked to see the manager. Jost asked, "Do I have to go in there and break in and find him?" said Woron.

Then Jost sat outside the restaurant in his truck and yelled obscenities at the manager, saying he couldn't be barred from the restaurant and "Your day will come."

Witnesses said Jost took out a shotgun, and the manager ran to a nearby house.

Police went to Jost's home and seized the loaded gun.

Jost's defence lawyer said Jost had a loaded gun because he keeps chickens. The lawyer also said Jost wasn't pointing the gun, but moving it over inside the truck.

Judge Inrig fined Jost $200 for each of the charges, and placed him on an order of probation where he cannot possess a firearm.

Plea bargaining between the defence and the Crown prevented a trial on Jost's charges. The Crown withdrew additional charges of two counts of threatening death and bodily harm, and three counts of careless use of a firearm.

Rights waived

Colin E. Noel waived his rights for a speedy trial for impaired driving charges laid in August of 1989.

The 23-year-old appeared without a lawyer, but said he intends to be represented during his upcoming trial date.

Judge Inrig informed Noel that if he's satisfied with the scheduled trial date, he would be waiving his rights under the Charter for a trial within a reasonable period of time.

Noel agreed, and will return to court on June 12.

Fine for covering up accident

A Scarborough courier was fined $300 for covering up for an impaired driver involved in a car accident.

Maurice Frank Charron, 45, was charged with public mischief and obstruction of justice for the incident, which occurred in Bicroft last September 2.

Apsley OPP were called to the accident on Highway 121, and Charron was arrested for impaired driving after saying he was responsible.

Police were later told Charron wasn't the driver. After an investigation, Charron admitted he was trying to cover up for a woman who was subsequently arrested for the accident.

The Crown withdrew the obstruction of justice charge.

Appearance for assault

Thomas Pearson appeared on charges of assault and being intoxicated in a public place for an incident which occurred in Guilford Township last September 30.

Pearson said he will get a lawyer before returning to court on March 1 to set a trial date.

Fine for drunken brawl

A Minden man must pay $1,000 in restitution and fines for slashing tires and assaulting an employee of the Rockcliffe Hotel.

Jonathon D. Kennedy pleaded guilty

Severances denied on two county lakes

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Development on two Haliburton County lakes has been frozen because of concerns about water quality.

The Ontario Municipal Board has rejected severance applications for Minden's Bob Lake and Hudson Lake in Cardiff on the basis of objections by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The board ruled that the two lakes have reached their capacity for development if lake trout habitat and water quality are to be protected. No new lots will be allowed to be severed on the lakes, but construction will be allowed on existing lots.

The county's land division committee granted the severances and the ministry appealed the decisions sending the matter to the Ontario Municipal Board.

The board ruled that water quality would be reduced and the lake trout populations would suffer if further development was allowed on either lake.

"Lake trout lakes are a rare and precious resource and are very sensitive to development," said Al Stewart, Algonquin Regional Director, in a ministry statement. "These rulings protect lake trout lakes, and are important milestones in our efforts to manage development within environmental limits."

Lake trout need clear cold water, rich in oxygen, to sustain life and support reproduction. Cottage and residential development on shorelines increases the input of nutrients such as phosphorus into a lake, resulting in increased algae growth. Upon dying, algae sink to the lake bottom where they decompose and consume oxygen, reducing favourable habitat for lake trout.

"Lakes have a capacity to support a certain amount of shoreline development without harming the lake environment, but there is an upper limit," said Stewart. "When the threshold is reached we cannot justify approving further lot development if fish habitat and overall lake quality are to be protected."

Based on information provided by the Ministry of the Environment, a list of sensitive lake trout lakes has been compiled. In cases where the lake has reached capacity, the ministry applies Policy Two which prohibits the creation of additional lots.

Barb Boland, the Ministry of Natural Resources planner for the Minden district, says this policy was circulated to local municipalities along with a list of affected lakes. Because the letter was difficult to understand, Boland said the ministry will clarify the policy and present each municipal council with the list of sensitive lakes in its township. "It's in the municipalities' interests economically to maintain the fisheries," she said.

Haliburton County is luckier than some areas because most lakes haven't been developed to capacity so there is still time to determine a sustainable cut-off point, said Boland.

We Had A Great Time!

On the weekend of February 2nd, the players and coaches of the Minden Monarch Tri-County Novice 'A' team enjoyed an outing to Toronto.

Coaches Barry Shaw and Andy Mackenzie, together with brave volunteers Brian Shaw and Peter Brohm, picked up the players Friday afternoon at school.

After an eventful trip to Toronto, the group enjoyed a "restful" evening at their hotel.

Saturday, the group had a hectic but enjoyable day capped off with their attendance at the Saturday night Leaf game. The players were accompanied to the game by their parents, much to the relief of Barry, Andy, Brian and Peter.

Although the Leafs racked up yet another loss, a good time was had by all.

All those who participated offer their thanks to the companies whose contributions made the trip possible.

Redmen face Falcons in hockey play-offs

The HHSS Redmen hockey team will face Fenelon Falls in the first round of the play-off. The games start this Tuesday.

The team completed the season last week with a 5-4 loss to Port Hope on Wednesday. The loss, coupled with a 5-5 tied Friday, February 1 against I.E. Weldon of Lindsay left the Redmen in fourth place at the end of the regular season of play.

The team now faces the first place Fenelon Falls Falcons in a best of three series to be played this week. The series opens Tuesday in Fenelon, see the second game Wednesday night at 7:30 in Haliburton arena, and a third game, if necessary will be played Thursday in Fenelon Falls.

Dance for Heart

Working up a sweat for a good cause, 32 people took part in a aerobathon in Haliburton village to raise money for the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

Organized and lead by instructor Wendy Bishop, the event raised more than $6,700 for charity in recognition of February as Heart and Stroke month.

Dubbed Dance for Heart, the event involved three hours of aerobic activity and took place at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

In preparation for Dance for Heart the participants collected pledges from the community.

Marty Dettman and Todd Redgrave, in white jerseys, close in on the Haliburton goalie during the opening game of the Tri-County Pee Wee play-offs. The Monarchs won the opening match, defeating their Haliburton hosts 6-2.

Home tops Men's League

Heading into the play-offs, Home Hardware has clinched the top spot in the Minden Men's Hockey League, five points ahead of Sid Stamp Fuels.

After winning two of the last three games, Home dropped a 6-4 decision to Hartwick Construction in the final week of the regular season.

Home took an early 2-0 lead in the game on goals by Kevin Hamilton and Ed Gibbons. Hartwick's Scott Hamilton put his team on the board but a late-period goal by Jeff Stamp gave Home a 3-1 lead going into the second frame.

Kevin Mills pulled Hartwick to within one by scoring the first goal of the second period. Home's Barry Boice answered to recapture the two-goal lead, but Mills scored at the end of the second period to leave Hartwick trailing by one at the start of the third.

Hartwick pulled even with Home when Wayne Dickenson scored the opening goal of the final period and Scott Hamilton put the game away by scoring the winning goal, and then an insurance goal, to round out Hartwick's 6-4 victory.

The win, combined with Rockcliffe's tie game against Westside, moved Hartwick into third place in the standings, nine points behind Home.

The Rockcliffe-Westside game started out looking like a walk-away win for the last place Westside team that has managed only three victories this season.

The team led Rockcliffe 2-1 at the end of the first period and increased their lead to 5-2 by the end of the second period.

As the third period got underway, Rockcliffe turned the game around by scoring three straight goals to pull the teams even at five apiece.

Westside regained the lead on a goal by Barry Walker and Garry Harrison followed up with another goal to increase the lead

Pee Wees begin play-offs

Minden Tri-County Pee Wees start their playoffs February 8, after a very exciting season, finishing first in their division, with a record of 17 wins, four losses and four ties.

We thank Minden Minor Hockey and everyone involved, including the fans and parents, of our team. The biggest thanks goes to our coach, John Dettman, for his dedication and loyalty in producing a winning team and sticking by his troops. Well done, John. Good luck in the playoffs.

Man disputes impaired driving charge

by Susan Grober

A 23-year-old man was sentenced to 14 days in Lindsay jail and lost his driver's licence for two years after being found guilty of driving while over the legal limit of alcohol consumption.

Gordon James Zelezinsky pleaded not guilty to charges of impaired driving and driving with over 80 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood last June 1 in Bicroft. He appeared before Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in provincial court in Minden.

OPP Constable James Solway had been working a RIDE program in the Apsley area as extra assistance had been requested because a function was being held that evening.

Solway had Zelezinsky pull over, and inspected his car after noticing a beer bottle cap on the floor of the vehicle. The police officer found an open and partially empty beer can under the driver's seat.

Zelezinsky was charged after failing a roadside Alert test, indicating he was over the legal limit.

"He became very belligerent and demanded to speak to his lawyer at once," said Solway. When offered use of a telephone at the Apsley OPP station, Zelezinsky contacted his mother.

At 10:30, two breathalyzer tests were performed half an hour apart by Constable Brian Martin, who told the court Zelezinsky had 141 and 131 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood.

Martin said the accused was very talkative, with a slurred speech. "He went through mood swings, from quiet to abusive."

Zelezinsky testified that he wasn't impaired when stopped by Solway and said, "I was in control of my motor vehicle, as I'm in control of myself now."

Zelezinsky said his only previous record is a care and control charge in Orillia which resulted in a one year driver's licence suspension in 1989.

He also disputed the findings of the breathalyzer tests. Zelezinsky said he didn't question Martin's credibility, but felt the amount of alcohol in his blood wouldn't have been much after driving half an hour to the police station and being confined.

"I find it impossible for me to be over 80 at the time. It's incredibly surprising that the test showed me to be 141 and 131."

Washout trial delayed

by Susan Grober

It will be more than three months before a continuation of the trial of two local men charged with allowing silt from a Main Street excavation site wash into the Gull River.

On February 1, Brad Bradamore and Larry Hughes appeared in Lindsay court to continue the trial, which began in Minden on January 2.

But the case is still not completed because the court ran out of time.

The pair were charged last March under the Fisheries Act by the Ministry of Natural Resources for permitting material which could endanger spawning areas to enter the river.

So far, four witnesses for the Crown have given testimony and have been cross-examined: Conservation Officer Dave Ferguson, Fisheries and Wildlife Supervisor Stan Flemming, biologist Wayne Wilson, Minden Roads Superintendent Clayton Cameron, and Jonathon Aggett, who lives next to the excavation site.

Ray Moore, who is Minden's reeve, was called as a defence witness. Moore's testimony was taken out of order because he may not be available when the trial is resumed, says Crown Attorney Lorne Chester.

Chester says he plans to call biologist Dave McLeish when the trial continues in Lindsay on May 31.

This late date was chosen as the first available time when Chester, Judge George Inrig, and defence lawyer Wally Scott can continue a full-day trial.

The charges against Bradamore and Hughes were laid after a washout at the downtown excavation site sent a large amount of silt and clay down McKnight Drive, through a marshy area, and into the Gull River.

Bradamore is the owner of the site, and Hughes is the contractor who had been hired to work there.

If convicted, either accused could face fines up to $50,000.

Restitution ordered in assault, mischief case to assault causing bodily harm and mischief under $1,000.

Court was told that on September 1, 1989, Kennedy became obnoxious after drinking and playing pool that afternoon and evening at the Rockcliffe.

When hotel employees told Kennedy to leave, he started fighting and kicking, biting one man in the hand and tearing off the man's fingernail.

Later, Kennedy told a police officer he had "fixed" another man's truck. Tires slashed on the truck cost $500 to replace, said the Crown Attorney.

Defence lawyer John Collins said Kennedy has since received treatment for alcohol abuse, and has abstained from alcohol.

Judge Inrig suspended sentence, and ordered Kennedy to continue to receive treatment. Kennedy must pay $500 each in restitution for the tires and fines for the assault.

'The battle is over'

Former SOS member asks school board to drop lawsuit

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A Norland resident has asked the Victoria County Board of Education to put an end to the fight over the closure of five northern schools.

Laura Janke was a member of the Save Our Schools (SOS) committee that has opposed the board's decision to close elementary schools in Norland, Kinmount, Burnt River, Coboconk and Kirkfield.

The matter was recently heard by the Supreme Court of Ontario who found in favour of the school board. The court also assessed damages of $15,000 against the 14 people involved in the fight against the closure.

Janke appeared at the last meeting of the Victoria County Board of Education and asked trustees not to collect the money.

"For me, the battle is over," she said in her presentation. "I will not be re-activating the SOS or be involved in any future attempts to stall the new school from being opened.

"Although I cannot apologize to you for having been emotionally involved, or having strong feelings about the issues affecting my children's education, I can, and am wise enough to, recognize defeat."

By collecting the damages assessed by the court, Janke said the trustees would be sending a signal to residents of the county who might be opposed to board policy.

"Do you want to to continue to send the message to the people, young and old, that they should never rock the boat, that they should never get involved, that they should never voice an objection to government policy and, yes, that they should never sign a petition?" she asked the trustees.

Since the court's decision, Janke said she has remained active as a secretary for the Norland home and school association, driving students on excursions and assisting the staff and principal at the school.

Janke is also involved in other local issues. Despite the outcome of the school closure case, she has been involved with the fight to stop a Metro Toronto landfill site from being established in Laxton, Digby and Longford and has opposed the closure of the Norland Post Office.

"I guess I have not learned my lesson," she said.

The board's superintendent of finance, Al Ingram, says the $15,000 awarded by the court represents only a fraction of the total legal costs incurred by the board during the fight.

He said the total costs to the board amounted to more than $60,000. Although the board has already instructed its lawyer to collect the $15,000 from the SOS committee members, Ingram said that as a result of Janke's presentation, the trustees agreed to discuss the issue further at this week's meeting of the management committee.

Laxton, Digby and Longford council has come out in support of the SOS committee members and condemned the board's decision to seek compensation.

In a letter to board trustees, municipal clerk Brenda Greer said councillors are "appalled with the decision of the Board of Education to pursue the matter of collecting lawyer costs from individual members of the Save Our Schools Committee."

"These people are guilty merely of taking the only course of action available to them in trying to provide their children with the best education that could be provided; which they felt was attending a school in their own community."

"Government agencies are supposed to provide wanted and needed services to the general public, not use their position to seek revenge," said the letter from council.

Drinking and driving an insidious problem: Crown

Zelezinsky said he plans to work with his grandfather in Toronto helping native Indians at the Scott Mission. "So my driver's licence will be valuable to me."

Although one and a half beers would put him over 80, Zelezinsky said four beers over a duration of time would have less of an effect. He added that he is always in control when he drives.

Crown Attorney Jerry Woron objected. "It's his condition, not his driving we're concerned about."

Woron said impaired driving is an insidious problem, "because people get a feeling of well-being and confidence when they drink, but it's a false feeling and a false confidence."

Addressing the impaired driving charge, Judge Inrig said there was no proof of erratic or improper driving. "I'm not satisfied there is sufficient evidence to prove that the accused was impaired."

However, the judge did concur with the findings of the breathalyzer tests, and registered a conviction on the over 80 charge.

"It takes some time for alcohol to enter the bloodstream, and four beers would bring about a 130 level," Judge Inrig said.

Zelezinsky's jail term is mandatory because of his previous related conviction.

Home leads for play-offs

to two goals.

But Rockcliffe's Ron Perrin denied Westside a victory by scoring the final two goals of the game as the two teams settled for a 7-7 tie.

The Times ended the regular season on a positive note, beating the second place Stamp team 9-6 thus avoiding being tied for last place with Westside.

Stamp took control of the game early and scored three goals to the Times' one in the first period.

Showing some offensive ability in the second period, the Times scored five goals and took a slim 6-5 lead into the third frame.

Maintaining the momentum, The Times opened up the lead with three more goals in the third period. A single Stamp goal rounded out the scoring at 9-6 in favour of the Times.

Play-offs begin this week.

Driver fined for attempting to plow into pedestrian

by Susan Grober

A 63-year-old Haliburton man accused of trying to deliberately run over a pedestrian faces a $400 fine and driver's licence suspension for one year.

At a trial held last Wednesday in Minden, Judge George Inrig found Paul Daigle guilty of dangerous driving during the incident, which occurred on August 24, 1989.

Robin Howe testified he was crossing Highway 121 near Jug City in Haliburton Village when Daigle's truck came around the bend heading north toward the traffic lights.

Howe, who had known the accused for a month, had just seen his probation officer and was walking toward the liquor store at the time of the incident.

Daigle's truck was 15 feet away when Howe was in the middle of the street, he said. "He was doing a fair speed," said Howe. "I looked right into his eyes. He was looking right at me."

Daigle then stepped on the accelerator, said Howe, forcing the pedestrian to leap five feet onto the sidewalk. "I believe he would have hit me... As I jumped, he just went right by me."

Howe had been living with his girlfriend on Daigle's property the previous month, and said he worked for Daigle for accommodation.

"I started asking for pay, and he refused," said Howe. "He said all I did was drink and smoke drugs."

Howe said he continued to have problems with Daigle after he moved out. "He was always threatening me, always phoning the police saying I stole from him and was on his property."

Defence lawyer Bruce Glass asked Howe about his criminal record, which includes break and enter, possession of stolen property, assault, and supplying liquor to minors. It's "a long one," acknowledged Howe, who now lives in Peterborough.

OPP Constable Mark Davis testified as the investigating officer. After interviewing Howe, Davis canvassed shopkeepers and found no witnesses to the event.

Davis then went to Daigle's house, and told the man about the charge. "Mr. Daigle become very irate. He was cursing and swearing at me," said the officer.

Davis found it difficult to talk with Daigle, who threatened to charge him with trespassing. "He was very excited."

Daigle denied the incident, but refused to tell Davis where he had been at the time. "He said, 'That's for me to know, and you to find out.'"

"I gave him an appearance notice, and he wouldn't take it," said Davis. "He told me where to put it."

Later, Daigle explained why he had been uncooperative. "I was angry, because he was trying to put a charge against me I knew nothing about."

Daigle testified he hadn't been downtown that morning. He said he was canvassing neighbours about starting a cottagers' association for Paradise Lake, and Alfred and Laura Hartwick were supposed to appear at the trial as witnesses on his behalf.

Daigle also said Howe was staying with his girlfriend at the property, but not as an employee, and without paying any rent. "It was him who wanted to work there... He's the one that owed me money."

After Howe left, he would trespass on the property, said Daigle. "He came back and stole stuff out of my fridge. He stole liquor from me."

"You don't think much of Mr. Howe, do you?" asked Crown Attorney Jerry Woron.

"I had no grudge against him," said Daigle.

"He steals from you, breaks into your place, and trespasses, but still you have no grudges against him?" countered Woron.

Glass reminded Judge Inrig of Howe's lengthy criminal record, and said Daigle has no record. "One of these two people has just outright lied to the court... I suggest Mr. Howe made up the story he's giving here today."

In considering the testimony of the three witnesses, Judge Inrig said Constable Davis had no reason to falsify his comments. He added that he believed Howe's testimony.

Ready to go for another year, Arnold Schroter of Minden registers for the 1991 Snowarama for Easter Seals, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Minden. Ride Chairman Dorian Malloy, left, looks after the paperwork. This is the 15th year Arnold has taken part in the annual charity ride and the sash he wears around his shoulders carries badges from each of the rides dating back to 1976.

Arnold carried $243 in pledges with him. Mild conditions last week cut into attendance at the ride, even though trail conditions were generally classed as good. The ride attracted 21 participants raising some $3000 for the Easter Seals Society. Top rider this year was Jaan Rutnyk of Thornhill who had $400 in pledges.

Car seats may be dangerous

The Canadian Automobile Association reports that some American-made child-restraint seats produced by Fisher-Price have a defect that could be dangerous to children. The metallic label in the abdominal shield of the car seat may become loose and removed by children, who can then place it in their mouths.

The warning involves Fisher-Price models 9100 and 9101 manufactured in the U.S.A. prior to June 20, 1989. The Canadian model 9102 is not affected.

Abbott Laboratories have provided the centre with a supply of recipe books called, "The Sucaryl 'How to Use It' Idea Book". Food exchanges and a calorie count have been included with the recipes. You can pick up a copy free of charge from your nearest centre.

The Haliburton County Information Centre is now accepting Tax Returns for preparation from Seniors and Low-income families. For further information or assistance contact your nearest office.

The Haliburton Centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the centre in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal Office is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100.

Sunny weather leads to country bus ride

We have changed the starting date for my column to Saturday morning.

Saturday, January 26, 1991, we had Marion Fisher read to us. Marion has volunteered to read to us three times a week, and we thank her very much. We have finished reading our book written by Daniel Steele.

Sunday evening Chapel service was led by Rev. John Burgess. He has been speaking on "He is Able", Alice Jones played the organ. Leon came to the service and brought his mother, Annie Jones. Thank you sincerely Rev. Burgess and Alice.

Monday Evelyn Coleman came for Bible Study. We studied two good women, Mary mother of James and

by Winnifred Barnum

Joseph, Mary the mother of Mark, and one bad woman who was sometimes known as Mary of Rome.

Tuesday being such a sunny day, Doris decided we would go for a bus ride in the afternoon. Eldon Deacon drove the bus, to make sure that he was familiar with everything he had to know to drive the bus while Doris is away. Doris sat with us, it was quite a change for her. We went via #121 to Haliburton, then to West Guilford and Carnarvon. We took in the sights in both villages and then back to Minden on Highway #35. We stopped at Kawartha for ice cream and when we went to pay, we found it was on the house. We sincerely thank Kawartha Dairy. They are so generous with treating us so often. We appreciate it very much. We returned to Hyland Crest after a short ride down #35.

Monday evening we were shown three films in the auditorium. They were "All about Bears", "Gopher Broke" and "Austria". Since I wasn't very well, Doris obtained the titles for me, and we thank Pat Bradburn for showing the films.

Thursday, as usual, we had a Tea Party in the auditorium. The ladies of the Hyland Crest Auxiliary prepared the tea, and since it was the last day of January they also brought a birthday cake. It was beautifully decorated by Pat Bradburn. The ladies who served the tea were Wanda Carter, Jean Robson, Ann Baker, Mary Guillemin and Pat Bradburn. January we only had two birthday girls, Alice Todd and May Horsely.

The tea was delicious. After the tea Doris played the piano for a short sing-song. One of the residents had a guest, Adele McGoldrick, whose birthday was Thursday. We included her with the birthday ladies. The residents thank the Auxiliary Ladies and Doris for the sing-song and the pleasure of having Adele with us.

Thursday evening we had Marg Prentice and Ruth

Travers call bingo for us. Carrie Drysdale and a friend played bingo with us for the fun of playing.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Dorset acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of January 27 to February 2.

January 27, 7 cm snow, 4.1 pH, from Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana.

January 28, 1 cm snow,

4.7 pH, from Southern Ontario and Southern Michigan.

January 29, 1 cm snow, 4.3 pH, from Southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Nell Miscio and son Ken Rowden spent a few days this past week with family in Oshawa and Orillia.

Club 35 Euchre February 4

50-50 Draw - June Alsop, lone hands - George Alsop, high lady - Ellen Klok, high man - Bob Lewis, Others - Fran Clark, Hal Burton and David Lamb.

Legion Euchre January 31

Most lone hands, ladies - Sharon Brown, men - Murray MacKinnon, high man - Roy McDonald, lady - Vi Edgson, others, lady - Art Lowther, man - Orval Francis. Draws: Marjorie Coulter, Art Lowther and Frank Sargent.

Yvonne Guida was thrilled and delighted recently to receive by mail an autographed photograph of world-famous baritone, Ruggiero Raimonda. The photograph depicts Raimonda as Boris Gudonov.

Irene Fuhr spent last weekend visiting Galt, near Cambridge, Ontario, with her children and grandchildren meeting a sister from Scotland she never knew she had. And through this meeting found out she has at least two sisters and two brothers. For sixty years she thought she had no family and now, out of the blue, her kids have found aunts, uncles and cousins. Maybe one day we will all get together. It was quite the weekend.

Why?

What did Christ die for? What did Beethoven, Chopin, Brahms, Berlioz, Tchaikowsky, Puccini, Mozart and countless other geniuses try to tell us?

Why did Shakespeare write? Why were we put on this earth? Because the only thing is love.

This is something we do not always believe. In the beginning there was no religion. Only survival. Why can we not love our neighbour because he is white or black? Or why he thinks differently than we do?

We were all put on this beautiful planet Not to hate but to appreciate its beauty and goodness of God and to love thy neighbour as thyself. Art can only be obtained through hunger - hunger for beauty or harmony or trust or justice or love.

Yvonne

Visiting with Stan & Jean Griffith this past weekend was Jean's son and daughter-in-law Wayne & Chris Harrison and grandchildren Kristy, Kyle, Brandon and Shawna.

We're sorry to hear that Stan Griffith and Norm Gemmell are presently in Peterborough Civic. Hope you're feeling better soon.

Jerry and Ruby Schmidt thank God for the safe arrival of their great granddaughter, Danika Hawthorne of South River.

Rocky and Jackie McElwain enjoyed last weekend with his mother Dorothy McElwain.

Weekend guest with Audrey and Bob Vick was their son Wayne from Toronto.

Helen and Al Brydson of Bracebridge visited last weekend with her parents Irene and Bill Moore and the Earl Birds.

Visitor with Jerry and Ruby Schmidt last week were the Don Sissons.

Clarence and Carol Precoor and Alec McLeod visited at their summer home in Gelert last weekend.

Burt Milburn of Matheson has been visiting his mother Dorothy Milburn.

Jack and Ethel Cowan of Phelpston have been visiting relatives and friends in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Widens of Midland were Sunday guests with their old friend Gladys Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Minaker of Stouffville enjoyed last weekend at their summer home.

Good wishes go to these people: Mary Currah, Dick Hilyer, Wayne Anderson, Bob Hughes, Bess Cox, Garth Horsely, Bud English (home with broken fingers), Gladys Dugan, Ron Maddock and Wendell Perry.

More winners in Lions Club Hockey Pool are Dorothy Boyd, N.W. Eilmore, Doris Thompson, Syd Adamson, Bernice Johnston (twice), Ann Baker, Alec Godin and Gord Monk who share in $250.

Cline and Mary Goldsmith of Oshawa were Saturday guests with Hilda and Stuart Harrison.

Sincere sympathy goes to the families and friends of the late Stan Baker and to the Jim Hicks family on the death of his mother.

The Monday afternoon

Anglican Euchre at their Parish Hall had winners for lone hands - Jack Chilton, and others - Arthur Lowther, Mary Cassidy, Iris Taylor and Betty Hardy.

Larry Harrison of West Hill visited with his parents Hilda and Stuart Harrison several days recently.

The Minden Legion has cribbage Monday nights and last night's winners were Dee Hisson, Willard Bridgman, Ed Hisson, Lorna Bridgman, Bea James and Gladys Wruth.

My partner, Vivian Anderson, and I really enjoyed our day at the Senior's Games at Deer Lodge with excellent full course meal at noon, deer race, bingo and our games of euchre. We will surely try to get back once again in early March.

Tuesday, February 5 there were euchre games at Gelert Centre with winners as follows: lone hands - Gordon Kellet, and others - Ruth Kellet, Lorna Bridgman, Norm Harrison Sr., and Bruce O'Brien with next games there on February 19.

Dale, Cathy and Tyler Vick of Vandorf visited last Sunday with Bob and Audrey Vick.

Gil and Sylvia Brooks of Downsview visited with her parents, the Stuart Harrisons on Sunday.

The Horticultural Society had their Pot Luck Supper at St. Paul's Parish Hall Tuesday, February 5. New president and officers were installed and some guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wyma, Jim Trotter, Dora Atwell and Mr. and Mrs.

Harris, Father Brian and Mrs. B. Parker, Mary Packard and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Maher. Harry Wyma showed some excellent slides with environmental theme. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

Called in were these events: St. Paul's Anglican Women are serving Pancake Supper, Tuesday, February 12 from 5-7, all you can eat; Ladies Auxiliary of Minden Legion are having a Pot Luck Dinner Wednesday, February 13 at 6 p.m. Then Trivia Nights Wednesday, February 20 and March 20 have been cancelled. Women's Institute meeting is February 20 at 2 p.m. in the Common Room.

Sorry to hear about the serious fire at Leon's Video Shop, but have no details as yet.

Marlene and Ron McElwain of Leamington spent last weekend with their parents Alice & Lloyd Sedgwick and Edna McElwain of "The Terrace".

Bradley Robinson of Toronto visited over the weekend with his mother Florence and the Jack Shaw family.

Camps encouraged to form environmental youth corps

The Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre of the Ministry of Natural Resources is encouraging local youth camps or community based organizations to sponsor an environmental youth corps. program. This program brings the enthusiasm and energy of Ontario's youth together with local organizations to take on the responsibility of protecting our natural resources and the condition of our environment.

Bob Stewart, acting director for the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre said, "It's important to encourage wise use of our resources and what better opportunity then getting local youth camps involved with Ministry of Natural Resources personnel in managing the Frost Centre's 24,000 hectares of Crown Land".

The program would see a local camp(s) or community based organization join into a partnership arrangement related to the management of local canoe routes, campsites, and access points. A team of local youths age 15 to 24 would be hired and trained by Frost Centre staff. They in turn would visit local youth camps and educate their clients on environmentally sound camping practices. The youth camp clients would not only practice these techniques as part of their outings but contribute towards educating any other campers and cottagers which they many come in contact with. As well the program would also assist with the overall development and maintenance of the canoe route system.

Mr. Stewart went on to explain, "we have over thirteen camps presently using the local area. We see this as an opportunity to help promote the types of low impact activities all campers and canoe trippers should be using and give recognition to those groups who are leaders in environmental camping methods."

Recalling a cleaner, simpler time

A New Year is a time to think back to see the trajectory we are following into the future. I grew up in London, Ontario in the early '50's and each return visit to the city is an opportunity to reminisce about the past.

London is a microcosm of the explosive changes that have taken place all across Canada, indeed throughout the world, since the end of the Second World War. We lived on the northwest edge of town next to the railway tracks. I used to walk along them in the spring to pick asparagus and caught some of my most prized insects in the grass beside the tracks. One summer I worked on a vegetable farm only a mile or so down the railway line.

A few blocks east of our house was the Thames River whose banks and pools I got to know intimately. I can still remember the largest small mouth bass I ever caught at the head of a large pool just above Gibson's Park. The river was full of catfish, carp, bass and sunfish which I could catch for my family to

by David Suzuki

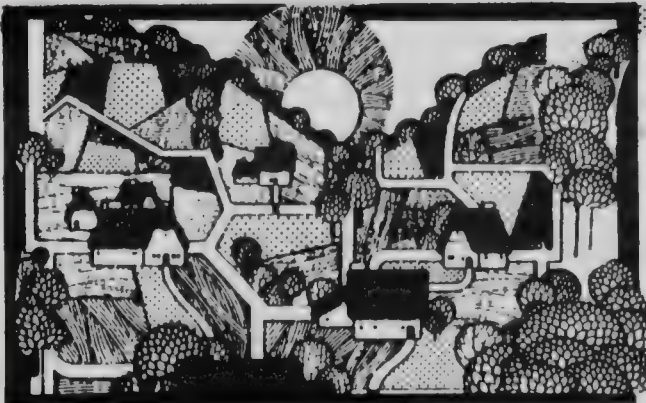

eat. The first soft-shelled turtle I ever saw was in the Thames. In the spring, spawning striped bass, pickerel and pike would jam the river.

Bicycling west on Oxford Street, I would quickly run out of pavement and hit the gravel road. In about 20 minutes, I'd be at my grandparent's 10 acre farm at the end of Proudfoot Lane. Of course, on the way I'd always stop at the large swamp beside the road to look for frogs, snakes and damselflies. In that swamp, I spied my first bittern standing with its beak straight up and trying to be invisible in the reeds. Many times I returned home with boots full of mud and bottles with frog eggs and dragonfly larvae.

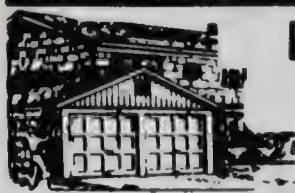

The wood surrounding the swamp always beckoned with the promise of a glimpse of a fox, skunk, raccoon or owl. There I once saw a remarkable example of animal altruism. I had spotted a flock of crows circling a tree and making a racket. As I crashed noisily toward them, the birds warily flew larger circles but wouldn't leave and I soon found the reason — a badly injured crow calling for help. It had been shot, yet even though I could have been another hunter, those birds risked staying by their injured comrade until it died.

My grandparents' farm was a child's paradise. Besides large vegetable and berry patches to be raided, there were several hundred chickens to be fed, eggs to be gathered and fences mended. I learned about death and our dependence on other animals for food by watching my grandparents butcher chickens and prepare them for market.

Growth, but at what cost?

At the end of the fields, a creek ran year round. That was where I dipped for darters, discovered freshwater clams and hunted snails. In the field, pheasants tooted like trains, goundhogs sunbathed in front of their burrows while hawks skimmed over the ground in search of rodents.

In the 35 years since my boyhood, the Thames River has been saturated with industrial effluent and agricultural runoff accumulating along its length. The river was too convenient for dumping garbage and chemical wastes. I walked along the Thames a few years ago and was shocked at how few clams, crayfish or minnows were to be seen. Londoners today recoil at any suggestion of eating fish from the Thames or asparagus from the tracks.

When I arrived in London in 1950, its population was just over 90,000. Five years later, we were proud when the city passed 100,000. By 1960, it had almost doubled to over 185,000, and reached a quarter of a million 10 years after that. Today, London boasts 300,000 people. This spectacular rate of growth was accompanied by a booming economy and a sense of civic pride. But at what cost?

The road to my grandparents' farm is now a wide highway with the city extending all the way to the village of Byron. My grandparents' farm is occupied by a cluster of highrise apartments while the creek runs through culverts. My beloved swamp is covered by an immense shopping mall and parking lot while the woods beside it have given way to a huge apartment complex. Along the Thames River and all around the city, once productive agricultural land has been converted to housing subdivisions.

The price of London's "progress" haunts me. Land for growing food is a limited commodity all over the world, especially in Canada. That arable soil is a legacy that belongs to future generations, but in the topsy turvy world of economics, farmland adjacent to expanding cities acquires a value that makes it irresistible for development. It's the same for swamps and woods and rivers and ponds. So the animals and plants disappear while increasingly, our children grow up in a sterile human-created environment. But with diminished opportunities to experience nature, how will future generations learn the vital lessons about their connection to and place within the nature world?

World agricultural trade a challenge

Reforming world trade in agriculture is probably among the trickiest tasks facing world negotiators.

There is a lot at stake; over $245 billion a year is spent on agriculture subsidies worldwide. So while the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) is a large and unwieldy process, we must continue to pursue an agreement—because failure could bring about considerable hardship for all but the wealthiest nations.

Is the tentative state of

Report from Ottawa

With Bill Scott, MP

world agricultural trade cause for gloom and despair? Hardly. Looking at what Canada has been able to put together with her largest trading partner, we find ourselves in a good position indeed.

Of course we are speaking about the Canada-U.S. Trade Agreement, an agreement that governs $200 billion worth of trade with a clearly defined set of rules, with clearly defined market access and with a clearly defined dispute resolution mechanism.

Of course there have been some sticking points; but when you're dealing with $200 billion worth of trade, no one could expect a bumpless ride. Looking back to the GATT and to bringing 107 nations into some form of harmony, the difficulty becomes obvious.

The trade agreement has come under fire from many critics, many misinformed. While agricultural exports to the U.S. have declined by 11 per cent, agricultural trade last year increased by 13 per cent.

There have been 54 new plant expansions in the agri-food processing industry and 50 new plants. The result is 350,000 new jobs.

Looking ahead, which is what we must continue to do, we see the possibility of including Mexico in a North American trade zone. With a market of 90 million people to offer, Mexico is a good opportunity for Canadian agriculture. Indeed, we currently enjoy a healthy trade with Mexico in the livestock sector, and a trade deal could only enhance that.

While reform at the GATT and a possible deal with Mexico are to be desired, they remain uncertain. What is certain is a positive trade arrangement with the United States. And what is also certain is that a government with the foresight and vision that saw the need for the Canada-U.S. Trade Agreement will also see what is best for the nation in the decades to come.

Clearing up the tourist region confusion

Last week, we talked about the inherent problems associated with the Ontario Government's OTAP program under which we are included in the Central Ontario Region.

The OTAP Program started back in the 70's and was a government bureaucratic driven program that divided the province into 12 different tourist regions. Flipping through their glossy 'Ontario Incredible' travel guide, it doesn't take long to notice that we in Haliburton are not alone in the mish-mash approach to selling tourism in Ontario.

Take Area #2, named "Festival Country". Waterloo and Kitchener are in with Orangeville, north of Toronto and the Niagara on the Lake "Shaw Festival" as a tourist destination area. The internationally famous Stratford Festival, 25 odd

From the Chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

miles down the road from Waterloo, incredibly, is not in Festival Country. Waterloo has the accommodation space for many visiting the Stratford Festival, but in this government brochure, all that is promoted is the Shaw Festival, 130 kms away. Stratford is lumped in with Windsor in government area #1, 230 kms away. "Southwestern Ontario" with the title "The Garden of Ontario". It is truly bizarre.

What the Chamber is proposing with a Rural Tourism Development Foundation is simple. Haliburton County is a large unique and diverse tourism destination area. Many in Haliburton County are tired of riding on the back of COTA for tourism promotion.

We have nothing in common with urban areas such as Oshawa, nor for that matter the Kawartha's or Bay of Quinte area. We want a Federally and Provincially Funded agency that is going to start promoting our own wilderness area.

Our report to the Ministry of Tourism stated, "The mandate of the foundation would be concentrated in boosting tourism in rural regions. It would develop and implement programs and strategies to attract visitors to remote and outlying areas beyond Metropolitan Toronto."

The committee proposes that a board be formed of a Provincial and Federal Ministry Rep., as well as Educational, Chamber, Economic Development and Resorts Ontario Representative. Funding could come from provincial and federal government, private and corporate sponsors.

With the recent change in provincial government, now is the best time to examine what has worked and not worked in the past. We need to begin with fresh ideas that will lay the ground work for promoting tourism in the 90's.

HALIBURTON COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION Invites Applications for the Position of DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION

Haliburton is a rural community, ideally located in Central Ontario's tourist area, a two and a half hour drive north of Toronto.

This system offers a full range of elementary and secondary educational programs for a student population of 2200. The Board offices are located in the village of Haliburton.

In addition to holding the necessary qualifications outlined in the Education Act, candidates must have a well developed educational philosophy and the leadership ability to build a shared sense of purpose throughout the system. Outstanding communication and interpersonal skills are essential.

Qualified candidates are invited to submit applications fully detailing qualifications and experience. Please include the names, addresses and telephone numbers of references to whom the candidate has provided disclosure consent in accordance with the Municipal Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, 1989.

The successful candidate is to assume office at a mutually agreeable date, but no later than August 1, 1991.

Applications will be received until 4:00 p.m. on Friday, March 8, 1991 and should be mailed to:

Make sure your voice is heard

These are not happy times in many parts of the world. There is of course a war going on that has us concerned and troubled. Closer to home we have a recession that is causing heartache for many Ontario citizens. Canadians in general are dispirited now and are not interested in the continuing constitutional debate. They are feeling somewhat exhausted by the events of last summer. But surely this is the time to accept the call to be a good citizen and take the time to get involved in this very important debate.

The provincial government has released its public discussion paper, called "CHANGING FOR THE BETTER - An invitation to talk about a new Canada". This is an opportunity for all citizens to actually get involved with the questions around the constitution. What do we really want of our country, our province, and our relationships with other provinces? Remember the criticism of the last round (Meech Lake), was partly based on the fact that there was little public involvement with the process, and that the people were never consulted. This government takes an entirely different approach in that we want to hear from the people. The discussion paper is available through my office and I encourage everyone to read it.

Drainville Diary

A report from Queen's Park

With Dennis Drainville, MPP

As well, the government's Select Committee on Ontario In Confederation is travelling the provinces over the next few months to get input from all people. The committee should be sitting in Peterborough on February 27. I will be attending and hope to see many Victoria-Haliburton opinions represented there.

Remember this is far too important an issue to leave to the legislators alone, please become part of the process.

I also want to share with readers something about how the Legislative process works in this province. In a Parliamentary democracy we are ruled by laws. They are the foundation of how we work with people in society.

Just as an example, The Health Act is a law. If you want to improve the delivery of health care, first you have to pass legislation that will become the law. The legislative process is open and provides an opportunity for all Members of the Assembly to study and debate the issue. All bills are passed by the Assembly before they become law, which is then translated into the way government interacts with the people. It is a long process to get law passed. Each bill is introduced into the House by the Government. It then goes through First and Second Reading and on to the Committee Stage, where it goes through a clause by clause examination, and possible amendments. It is then brought back to the House for Third Reading, with its amendments. By that stage, the bill has been well debated and perhaps changed and it is now up to the Members to state their support or opposition and to go on to the third reading. At that point, the new bill will become law. It then goes to the ceremonial phase, Royal Assent and Proclamation. The Lieutenant Governor signs the bill and it is then Proclaimed by the Cabinet, at which point it becomes a law in effect in Ontario.

BAHA'I FAITH

"Acceptance of the oneness of mankind is the first fundamental prerequisite for reorganization and administration of the world as one country, the home of humankind. Universal acceptance of this spiritual principle is essential to any successful attempt to establish world peace. It should therefore be universally proclaimed, taught in schools, and constantly asserted in every nation as preparation for the organic change in the structure of society which it implies."

The Promise of World Peace: A Baha'i Statement on Peace by the Universal House of Justice is available through your local Baha'i community.

BIRTHS

KENNEY: Gary and Donna (nee McLeod) are proud to announce the birth of

born January 25, 1991, weighing 8 lbs, 13 oz. A new sister for Dan, Matt and Laura. Thanks again to Rhoda Ellis, Dr. Stone and the staff at Ross Memorial Hospital. 2B

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to everyone who phoned, sent cards, flowers and enquiries during my stay in Haliburton Hospital. Also thanks to Murray Hogg for driving us to Peterborough when we needed him. Thank you all and God Bless you.

Ruth Nesbitt

I would like to say thanks to everyone for making my six weeks in hospital easier. Our two wonderful children Sherry and Larry, their spouses and children. Mom Hewitt who's always there, Elaine's sisters and brother and families for their extra help, Harold and Yvonne Lapp, Elda Henderson and Pat Lichty in Peterborough for their spare room and taxi service. To Peter and Debbie Anderson in Scarborough for the same, Les & Nila Reynolds, Goldie & Irma Walker, Kawartha Dairy for their gifts, Jerry Cooper for the hair cut and everyone who sent cards, gifts, phone calls and visits both in hospital and since I've been home. I'm home for a month so your visits are making the time go much faster. Thanks is so small when your help has been so great. We love you all.

Wayne & Elaine Anderson

I wish to thank all my family and friends for all the cards and get well messages during my stay in hospital. Thanks also to the nursing staff and Dr. Hick and Dr. Dawson. God Bless you all.

Clara Francis

IN MEMORIAM

HOWE, VERA - In loving memory of my dear wife who passed away February 15, 1988.

There will be a heartache
And often a silent tear,
But always precious memories
Of the days when you were here.

I hold you close within my heart
And there you will remain,
To walk with me throughout my life
Until we meet again.

Missed & loved always, your husband Henry.

HOWE, VERA - In memory of our mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

We who loved you, sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are always near.

The family.
